1. In the spring of 1949 [] a small brick structure, approximately 2.5 x 2.5 m. in size with an iron door and without windows, in the village of Greslove Myto (on the highway from Znojmo /4851N-1603E/ to Jihlava /4920N-1530E/, about 20 km. northwest from Znojmo). [] this structure was a valve station for pressure control in a pipeline which had been laid by the Germans during World War II. []

2. Greslove Myto is close to a highway which connects Jihlava and Znojmo. It seems likely that the pipeline follows this road. From Jihlava it could easily connect with the oil refinery town of Kolin /5002N-1708E/ and could supply the refineries there with crude oil from the Slovakian oil fields near Kutv /4840N-1701E/, southeast of Znojmo on the same highway. On the other hand, it is possible that the Germans would have wanted to supply the Znojmo region with gasoline from Kolin. []
